"Yet there are moments when the walls of the mind grow thin; when nothing is unabsorbed, and I could fancy that we might blow so vast a bubble that the sun might set and rise in it and we might take the blue of midday and the black of midnight and be cast off and escape from here and now."

In this adaption of Stein's Doctor Faustus I have hoped to present not a classical Faust image but rather that of a man who regrets the loss of love through the contrivances of his own vanity.
